TEACHING

Teaching at Wayne State University School of Medicine

Medical Students

Clinical Medicine 1 Small Group Instructor This course covers introduction to clinical interviewing with multiple variations, such as pediatric interviews, health screening and health maintenance, psychosocial issues, healthy elder, professionalism and ethics, etc. Use of role play, standardized patients and in-class discussion occur throughout the academic year of the freshmen class.	2004-current
--	--------------

Preceptor, Third Year Family Medicine Clerkship Clinical precepting of third year WSUSOM students for a month-long rotation which was done in the office setting on a case-by-case basis. The students are supervised during independent assessment of patients and provided with feedback about the clinical content on every patient.	2011-current
--	--------------

Preceptor, Continuity Clerkship, Wayne State University School of Medicine 2013-current
I host a third year medical student weekly over a period of six months in my clinic and share care of the patients, clinical decision making, and review of research literature with the student.

Beaumont Wayne Hospital Family Medicine Inpatient Service 2011-current
In addition to teaching post-graduate family medicine residents, we typically have 2-3 fourth year WSUSOM students doing their sub-internship rotation

Site Visit Host-- Year 1 Clinical Medicine Course 2003-2004
This was an introductory, clinical mentoring session covering fundamentals of outpatient care and physical diagnosis for small groups of students.

Family Medicine Lecture Series, Henry Ford Hospital, 2009-2010
Standardized lectures for third year WSUSOM students on clerkships at Henry Ford Hospital; approximately five times per academic year, I provided lectures to small groups on chronic Obstructive Lung Disease and Asthma.

Teaching at Wayne State University

Instructor EER 7880: 2015
Introduction to Ethnography
This was a seminar taught to Ph.D. students in the Department of Theoretical and Behavioral Foundations, Wayne State University College of Education,

Instructor EER 8710: 2014
Advanced Ethnography
This was a seminar taught to Ph.D. students in the Department of Theoretical and Behavioral Foundations, Wayne State University College of Education

Co-Instructor: ANT 7605: 2011
Narrative, Lifecourse, Health and Healing
Taught with Professor Mark Luborsky, this graduate seminar focused on anthropological theory, theory development, and ethnographic case examples. Students were Masters and PhD level graduate students from multiple disciplines, such as Communication, Education, Anthropology, etc.

Teaching at Other Institutions

Course or curriculum development

Clinical Research in Practice: the Journal of Team Hippocrates	2015-current
---	--------------

This is an online journal sponsored by the Wayne State University Library System and Wayne State University School of Medicine, using Bepress Publishing from California. <http://digitalcommons.wayne.edu/crp/> It is designed as a pedagogical tool to teach critical appraisal of research literature and integrating research into clinical practice. I wrote the web content, designed the author submission guidelines, designed the editorial work flow, and set up the peer review process. I coordinated with other clerkship directors to incorporate this into the curriculum. It is designed as the infrastructure of the Translational Medicine and Evidence Based Practice curriculum at WSUSOM.

Translational Medicine, Evidence Based Practice

2012-2017

As Course Director, I work with the Vice Dean of Education, the Assistant Dean of Student Affairs, the Course Directors Committee, and the Curriculum committee at Wayne State University School of Medicine. I conceptualized the course material, within the framework of the LCME requirements and the future needs of the medical students. In addition to developing the lecture series, I worked with professors in the Department of Family Medicine and Public Health Science to deliver the inaugural lecture series of the course in Fall 2011. I also coordinated second year WSUSOM curriculum, which is small group instruction. I supervise the small group instructors as well as teach a small group. The curriculum is continuing to expand and becoming integrated with other departments within the School of Medicine.

Practice management

2004-2008

This was a month long rotation that covered job seeking, work-family balance, financial planning, exploration of the humanities by reviewing a novel, painting an oil painting, and exploration with essay writing about how life changes and the role of self-actualization. The summative reflection was coursework related to Stephen Covey's The 7 Habits of Highly Effective People and creation of a personal mission statement.

Introduction to Family Medicine

2002-2008

This was a post graduate medical rotation designed to create a biopsychosocial foundation for practice; important cultural issues were taught by attending the Charles H. Wright Museum of African American History, sampling community served soul food, exploring culture of origin issues of the group, certifying basic medical procedures, orientation to policies and procedures, and providing lectures on common outpatient medical problems.
