Original Observations

1. Leah Robinson, Jira Coumarbatch, Ronald Thomas, Patrick D Bridge. Strategies for identifying students at risk for USMLE step 1 failure. Family medicine. 02/2010;42(2):105-10.
Failing Step 1 of the US Medical Licensing Examination (USMLE) or a delay in taking the exam can negatively affect a medical student's ability to match into a residency program. Unfortunately, identifying students at risk for failing Step 1 is challenging, but it is necessary to provide proactive educational support. The purpose of this study was to develop a strategy to identify students at risk for failing Step 1.
2. J G Coumarbatch, N. Israel, T Markova. New onset LVOT in an elderly patient. Family Practice Recertification. 01/2005;27(40):18-26.
